

From: The Learning Partnership [noreply@thelearningpartnership.ca]
Sent: April 4, 2013 4:14 PM
To: Kislinsky, Peter
Subject: TLP Bulletin April 2013

Akela Peoples
President and CEO

The new year symbolizes the start of new adventures and that's especially true at The Learning Partnership. In this issue of our TLP Bulletin, we look at some recent successful events and look forward to a year packed with activity.

Here are some highlights:

- Fifty-one outstanding principals from across the country were celebrated at the Canada's Outstanding Principals Awards Gala on February 26. Ontario's new Minister of Education, Liz Sandals spoke – her first official speaking engagement.
- News from Fredericton. We honoured James W. Ross with a Champions of Public Education Award in November. Former Prime Minister Brian Mulroney was the keynote speaker. Also news about another New Brunswick event later this year!
- Three more exceptional Canadians – Rick Waugh, CEO of Scotiabank, John Stackhouse, Editor-in-Chief of The Globe and Mail and entrepreneur and philanthropist Aditya Jha -- will be presented with a Champions of Public Education Award in Toronto on May 8.
- We turn the spotlight on TLP's Chair of the Board. Find out what makes Micheal Coté tick.

Please enjoy this edition of the TLP bulletin. We hope that it inspires you to become involved in championing public education to help prepare our young people for a challenging and exciting future. Together, we can make a difference.

Follow us on

The Learning Partnership is a national charitable organization. Your support helps us deliver programs and initiatives across Canada that are designed to foster student success.

TLP WEB | PRIVACY POLICY | CONTACT US | MANAGE MY TLP EMAIL

The Learning Partnership Tel: 416 440 5100 Fax: 416 482 5311 www.thelearningpartnership.ca